

Press Release

9 July 2009

Taylor Walton appoints two new partners

Taylor Walton LLP has appointed two new partners, Dr Sam De Silva and Patrick Green.

Dr. De Silva is a widely published and recognised specialist in technology and outsourcing law and joined Taylor Walton in 2008 from City firm Pinsent Masons. He has added further strength to the firm's Technology & Outsourcing team, and has been responsible for winning significant new clients.

Patrick Green is firmly established with Taylor Walton having been with the firm for six years. During this time he has very successfully developed key clients and contacts in the Private Client Department.

Taylor Walton's Private Client team is widely recognised within the wealth management community for its expertise in dealing with the often complex personal matters relating to asset management and estate planning of high net worth individuals. The team has three partners, and is the largest in the Northern Home Counties region.

Managing Partner, Dermot Carey, commented:

“Despite the current downturn Taylor Walton is playing to its strengths and continuing to widen its client base both locally and elsewhere in the UK. The increasing number of technology-based businesses investing in the region is providing us with a stream of new business, and our Private Client team has further cemented its reputation as a very credible alternative to City firms. We offer top quality expertise and exceptional value for money.”
